About the Webcast

This webcast will focus on the national broadband plan (NBP) and the serious threats that certain provisions of the NBP will have on the ability of rural telecommunications companies to continue delivering high-quality broadband services to their customers. Every company should participate to learn how this plan, as currently written, will impact your business and community, and what you and your employees can do to bring pressure on the FCC to modify the plan. You will learn about specific aspects of the plan that are most problematic. Presenters will also discuss how to participate in industry-wide efforts to educate other rural stakeholders about the plan, what it will mean to them and how they can join us in fighting for a plan that will deliver to rural communities across America the high-speed broadband services they need and deserve. The presentation will be offered on June 30 and repeated on July 7. Additionally, we will post the webcast online for future use.
